

NASA Future of Space Event

April 29, 2019, 1 to 2 p.m. CST

Find Your Future in Space!

NASA invites current college students to participate in the live-streamed The Future of Space event featuring NASA Administrator Jim Bridenstine. This insightful discussion with NASA leadership will highlight how students can help NASA go Forward to the Moon . . . to stay.

The event will also feature a live call with the International Space Station where the astronauts on-board the station will answer questions submitted by students.

Tune in to this special event at <https://www.nasa.gov/nasalive>, or if you happen to be close to Washington, D.C., you may be able to attend in person!

Get Involved with The Future of Space event!

You can submit questions for the ISS astronauts, organize a watch party, or attend the event in person! Use the links below to participate!

Submit your questions here:

https://www.surveymonkey.com/r/Future_of_Space

Host a watch party and tell us about it:

https://www.surveymonkey.com/r/Space_Grant_Future_of_Space

Register for the event at NASA Headquarters in Washington DC:

https://www.surveymonkey.com/r/Future_of_Space_Attendee_Registration

For more information go to:
<https://www.nasa.gov/stem>
<https://twitter.com/nasaedu>

Press Release: <https://www.nasa.gov/press-release/nasa-hosts-university-students-to-discuss-future-of-space-exploration>